The core principles are:

- Investors are particularly sensitive to losses rather than averse to taking risk
- Long-term performance should be judged alongside returns from cash and inflation
- Equity will be the main driver of real returns, but that these returns require patience and discipline to achieve
- Short-term market movements are impossible to predict
- Asset allocation is the long term driver of performance and risk management
- Understanding and managing liquidity is vital

Important Information

Past performance, or any yields quoted, should never be considered a reliable indicator of future returns. The value of investments and the income from them may go down as well as up. You may not get back the amount you invest.

When investments are made in overseas securities, movements in exchange rates may have an effect on the value of that investment. The effect may be favourable or unfavourable. Please note that bond funds may not behave like direct investments in the underlying bonds themselves. By investing in bond funds the certainty of a fixed income for a fixed period with a fixed return of capital are lost. Different funds carry varying levels of risk depending on the geographical region and industry sector in which they invest. You should make yourself aware of these specific risks prior to investing. Targeted absolute return funds do not guarantee a positive return and you could get back less than you invested, much like any other investment. Additionally, the underlying assets of targeted absolute return funds generally use complex hedging techniques through the use of derivative products. Funds which invest in specific sectors may carry more risk than those spread across a number of different sectors. In particular, gold, technology and other focused funds can suffer as the underlying stocks can be more volatile and less liquid. The property market can be illiquid; consequently, there can be times when investors will be unable to sell their holdings. Property valuations are subjective and a matter of judgement.
